Daily Press Photo by Joe Fudge

GEN Stephen J. Townsend receives the Colors of the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command from Chief of Staff of the Army GEN Mark A. Milley as the outgoing commander, GEN David G. Perkins looks on.

Sixteen years ago, then LTC Stephen J. Townsend commanded the 4th Battalion, 31st Infantry on its first combat deployment following 9/11. On his watch, in Afghanistan, Polar Bears drew their first enemy blood since Vietnam.

In August, 2016, LTG Townsend, CG of XVIII Airborne Corps and Ft. Bragg, was scheduled to be the main speaker at the Regiment's centennial Shanghai Bowl Ceremony. But duty called him away. He had to cancel. The morning after the centennial banquet, he was in the Middle East assuming command of Combined Joint Task Force—Operation Inherent Resolve, operating in Syria and Iraq. He returned to Ft. Bragg in September, 2017 and immediately wrote the Afterword for our history, The 31st Infantry Regiment: A History of "America's Foreign Legion" in Peace and War.

On March 2nd General Townsend pinned on his fourth star at Fort Eustis, and took the helm of the Training and Doctrine Command. TRADOC oversees the training of all Army forces and the development of the Army's operational doctrine. Simply put, its function as an organization is to design, develop, and build the Army—a huge responsibility.

Association Commander Mike Strand is trying once again to schedule GEN Townsend as reunion banquet speaker, this time at Myrtle Beach. Hopefully Polar Bear Townsend will be able to make it this time.

COMMANDER'S CORNER

By LTC Isaac Rademacher

On 4 May 2014 LTC Rademacher turned over command of the 4/31st to LTC Steve Wallace. This is LTC Rademacher's final COMMANDER'S CORNER.

Serving in this Regiment has been my greatest honor and I am truly humbled. But I will remain in touch through the Association, and will definitely leverage an opportunity in the future to reconnect with everyone.

Two years goes by fast. I remember taking command of 4-31 IN on 6 June 2016 as if it were yesterday. Although a much more memorable experience occurred just a couple of months later when we celebrated the 100-year anniversary of the 31st Infantry Regiment. The Centennial Anniversary nested perfectly with my desire to bring the prestigious history of this Regiment to life and share it with the Soldiers of tomorrow. But that effort would have been little more than a history lesson if not for the outpouring of loyalty, honor, and appreciation by over 200 of the Polar Bears that helped build this legacy in decades past. The anniversary celebration was the catalyst to fuel a series of renovations to our HQ, our museum to the Polar Bear history. Enter and you find Little George in front of our colors and the American flag. To the left is a series of mannequins wearing every uniform worn by Polar Bears over the last 100 years (all were actually worn by Polar Bears), and above them a timeline of the various patches describing the ever evolving missions throughout the years. To the right, priceless artifacts of the Regiment – the Shanghai Bowl and CPL Darrell Stark's POW uniform from the Philippines. A walk through the HQ hallway is now an instructional walk through time, with graphic campaign boards detailing the operational contributions of the Polar Bears through their various campaigns, and accompanying valor boards which highlight some of the significant sacrifices made by those who came before us, or walked alongside us. Every Polar Bear in uniform today knows well the epic history of the Regiment of which he or she is now a part. There are more projects underway that will be complete in the coming years, because as it turns out, two years was not enough time.

Long term we are also designing a renovation to a space that is currently a closet. I wanted to make a memorial room/space to recognize all of the Polar Bears who made the ultimate sacrifice during combat. The intent is to have a roll call posted for each campaign.

Investing in the history of this organization has been extremely rewarding. The lineage is so rich and noble, the Association is very active, and the Soldiers were longing to be a part of something bigger than themselves. It really only required a little emphasis from me and the leaders were sold on the importance of embracing our history. It would not have been possible without all you and your comrades have done to keep the lineage over the years, so thank you for your service on that front.

It has been the most prestigious honor of my life to serve as the commander of this historic unit. While I am very proud of the tactical achievements and the culture of this battalion, I am most proud of our renewed interest and lasting investments to displaying our history. The Polar Bears of tomorrow will draw purpose and strength through reflection on the courageous accomplishments of Polar Bears past. Our history is the foundation of our legacy.

—Pro Patria—

Other recent projects around the HQ: reframing and hanging the battalion colors from Vietnam, Afghanistan, Iraq and the 100th Anniversary; displaying all unit citations from all of the Regiment's wars; and the major refurbishment of George, the Polar Bear statue in front of the Headquarters.

Next issue will carry LTC Wallace's first column as 4-31 commander.

Myrtle Beach Reunion Coming Up in September

The first Regimental reunion in two years is almost upon us, scheduled for Sunday September 16 to Wednesday the 19th. Our gathering this year will happen right after the 102nd anniversary in August of the 31st Infantry's activation in the Philippines.

The site for the reunion is a great one for relaxing and having fun—the Beach Cove Resort in North Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. Besides the obvious ocean front activities, golf is a major attraction in the area. Known as the "Golf capital of the World," the Grand Strand is home to over 80 golf courses.

In addition, the Pirates Voyage Dinner and Show will be available, featuring Captain Blackbeard and his quartermaster, Calico Jack—with acrobatic competitions, aerial feats, sea lions, tropical birds, beautiful mermaids and a lot more. Also available will be many local tours, with signup at the reunion registration desk.

One of the first big events will be the Welcome Barbecue Dinner. But the reunion highlight will as usual be the Banquet and Shanghai Bowl Ceremony, with presentation of the colors and the traditional toasts. During the entire reunion, Dale Mills our quartermaster will have the Regimental store open, and in addition to the usual items for sale, the book The 31st Infantry Regiment: A History of "America's Foreign Legion" in Peace and War can be purchased or, if you saved ten dollars by preordering with the form elsewhere in this issue, your copy will be available for pickup.

Other reunion events: the annual membership meeting, and the memorial service to commemorate those who have passed on since our last gathering.

September will be a great time to renew old friendships and tell a war story or two over something cold to drink. The registration form is on the next page.

Special pricing is available at the hotel not only for the dates of the reunion, but also for several days before and after the event thanks to the great work done by Charlie Tapp who is the coordinator for this reunion.

This resort and the entire Myrtle Beach area is kid friendly so those of you with children or grandchildren you would like to bring along will not have to worry about keeping them busy.

Change of Command Ceremony

On Friday afternoon 4 May the colors of the 4th Battalion, 31st Infantry Regiment were passed from LTC Isaac Rademacher to the new commander, LTC Steve Wallace. The ceremony was held in the Fort Drum Field House due to rain and the threat of a tornado. When the Colonel of the Regiment, LTG (Ret.) "Sam" Wetzel, walked through the barracks he talked and listened to some extremely sharp Polar Bears. They wanted to know about the battle of Nui Chom Mountain where Sam commanded the 4-31 and Michael Crescenz won his posthumous Medal of Honor. Some also asked him about leading patrols during the Korean War. Change of Command day was a time for soldiers to talk with each other about the Regiment's history.

WWII Purple Heart Presented

PVT Jasper Davis, Jr., from North Carolina, was serving in Co. F, 31st Infantry Regiment when the Japanese attacked the Philippines. He fought through the defense of the islands, and after the surrender survived the Bataan Death March.

Even before that surrender, Davis had developed dysentery, a parasitic infection of the intestines. While interned in Cabanatuan POW Camp, he also developed malaria. He died on 3 October 1942, and was buried with eight others, all of whom had died within a 24-hour period. After the war, Graves Registration was unable to identify Davis from among the other comingled skeletal remains. He is memorialized on the Tablets of the Missing at the Manila American Cemetery.

Over the years, PVT Davis's nephew, Kenneth, became increasingly interested in his uncle's combat experiences. When he realized his uncle had never formally received the military awards to which he was entitled, he requested that they be given to him. On April 9 2018, PVT Davis's Bronze Star and Purple Heart were duly presented to his nephew and the family. The ROTC unit at Wake Forest did the honors during the seventh inning of a game with Duke University. The 31st Infantry Association added one of its unique Centennial Coins as a form of memorabilia for the family. By fighting and dying in the Philippines, PVT Davis had made himself a part of the hundred-year history of the 31st Infantry Regiment.

INTRODUCTION

Although the regiment’s century-long history has been told in installments through scattered books and articles, until now it has not been available in one comprehensive work. The 31st Infantry Regiment: A History of “America’s Foreign Legion” in Peace and War fills that need, providing in a single source the narrative of its hundred-year contribution to the nation.

The regiment was activated in the Philippines, in the geographical area known as the Pacific Rim. And for more than seventy years it fought every one of its battles within that same area—in Siberia, Shanghai, Korea and Vietnam. Even its post-WWII occupation duty in Japan lay within that area. Only since 9/11 have its combat missions taken it beyond, to Afghanistan and Iraq in South Central Asia. Although most of its battalions have at one time or another been stationed in the United States, the headquarters of the regiment and its 1st battalion still have never served within the nation’s borders. Hence the nickname, “America’s Foreign Legion.”

Over the past century, joint operations with other nations have been the norm. In Siberia, the regiment worked in cooperation with the United Kingdom, Canada, China, Italy and Japan. Shanghai brought the regiment together with the British, French, Japanese, Chinese and White Russians. Jointly executed missions with the Marine Corps began early in the regiment’s history as well—already stationed in the Shanghai international settlement was the US 4th Marine Regiment—the commanding officer of the 31st Infantry reported to the Marine commander when the army unit came ashore. Korea and the post-9/11 deployments echo this pattern, both with other nations and with other US Armed Forces.

The recurring presence of the Japanese should be noted. In their ultimately unsuccessful march toward empire, they had already defeated the Russians in the 1904-1905 Russo-Japanese War, and moved eagerly into Siberia in 1918. Japan had seized Manchuria in 1931, and in the following year they welcomed the Shanghai Incident as an opportunity to expand even deeper into Chinese territory. Then, in the Philippines in 1941-1942, the 31st Infantry met the Japanese again. A nominal ally became an implacable enemy.

The crosscurrents created by opposing forces and factions in Siberia challenged the regiment on its very first deployment: leftist reds, monarchist whites and Cossack warlords. And bandits—Russian, Mongol, Manchu, Korean and Chinese. And as sometimes happens, this past proved to be prologue to the regiment’s present. A new swirl and mix of violent forces continues to recur in the aftermath of 9/11. Besides nation states such as Afghanistan, Syria, Iraq and Pakistan among others, there are also religious, tribal and political groups. These factions cycle in and out of active combat or support it: al-Qaeda, the Taliban, Sunni, Shia, Kurds, and ISIS. Such complexity places a heavy responsibility on the entire force, both chain of command and line soldiers. Combat and diplomacy are equally the regiment’s stock in trade.

Through it all, the regiment—at this writing represented by a single active duty unit, the 4th Battalion, 31st Infantry of the 10th Mountain Division—has carried out its assigned missions in exemplary fashion. Seven Medals of Honor have been awarded to individual members, and across the decades the unit as a whole has earned six Presidential Unit citations. The burden of the present volume is to record how the Polar Bears accomplished all of this by narrating the century-long history of the 31st Infantry Regiment.
